The Capitol and the V. P. I. Appropriation Measures in the Schate This Week.

THE CAPITOL BILL IS STRONG

There Is Every Reason to Believe It Will Pass-Other Bill's Friends.

All interest in the legislative week is centered in the fate of the Capitol enlargement bill carrying an appropriation of $250,000 for the purpose, which will come up on in its passage in the Senate to-day. Opinion in that body inclines to the view that the measure will easily command the necessary twenty-one votes, Some question has been raised as to whether the work could be done within the proposed appropriation, Senator Keezell expresses the opinion that it can and cited the cost of the courthouse of Rockingham county, one of the handsomest buildings in the State, which was built for $101,000, to show that the appropriation was sufficient for the purpose here proposed.

the plan under consideration calls for the erection of wings to east and west of the present Capitol, to be built of brick and stuccoed, and made to comport with the exterior of the building, as it is pro-posed to renovate it. These whigs will be intended for the halls of the two houses and will be commedious, and high pitched.

Half a dozen or more members of the Senate have expressed the belief that the Senate have expressed the belief that the bill would pass on Tuesday, certainly if there was anything like a full attendance of senators. Senator Patteson, who is sick, is one of those favoring the appropriation. It is doubtful whether he can be in the Senate by Tuesday. In the event the bill passes the Senate, it is said that its prospects of passage by the House are very bright. Sentiment is rapidly crystallying to favor of the bill, and opposition. lizing in favor of the bill, and opposition to it is weakening.

THE V. P. I. BILL.

Large Appropriation Asked for This Growing School.

This Growing School.

The bill appropriating $200,000 for the enlargement and Enprovement of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute has been made a special and continuing order for Weddesday at 12:30 P. M. by the Senate, Judge Phlegar, senator from Montgomery, and one of the most inituential friends of the institution, will have charge of the bill on the floor of the Senate and will make a splendid showing of the work and worth of that school, now one of the largest in the South. Senator Phlegar is perhaps more familiar with the excellent showing made by this school and the high stand attained by its graduates than any other member of the Senate. He is a speaker who never fails to command the attention of the Senate and to carry weight with that body. Others in the Senate will speak for the bill, which has endorsement of the Finance, Committee of that body. It is proposed to enlarge the dining hall of the institution and to build new and commodious barracks, in anticipation of an attendance of one thousand students within the next few years.

Some of the members of the legislative committees who have just visited Blacks.

students within the next few years.
Some of the members of the legislative committees who have just visited Blacksburg and inspected the school assert that about $105,000 will supply the immediate needs of the schools and will provide practically what they ask. At least two senators take their view, and they are both friendly to the school. The friends of the bill do not concede these claims and are stoutly asking for the whole amount.

OPPOSE THE RAISE.

Senators Will Antagonize Salary

Increasing Measures,
The salary-raising propositions, which are cropping up at every turn in the General Assembly, will encounter a stormy experience when they strike the Senate. A member of the Senate Fire Committee, discussing the substitute of the Senate Fire Committee, discussing the bill, stated that he saw no reason why a State official or employe of the State, in At least one employe of the State, in Part in Many FALLS DEAD with the substitute of the State, in the recovers he will be a substitute of the State, in the process, as a result of which is a substitute of the State, in the recovers he will be substituted with garnishment for debt, and that unless the law was repealed any official could have his salary for weeks to come garnisheed, and have nother than the substitute of the State, in the recovers he will be the substitute of the State, in the recovers he will be the substitute of the death and that unless the law was repealed any official could have his salary for weeks to come garnishment for debt, and that unless the law was repealed any official could have his salary for weeks to come garnishment for debt, and that unless the law was repealed in the salary for weeks to could have his salary for weeks to coul steps in the process, as a result of which almost every employe of the State is asking that his salary be increased. He pointed out how the head of one branch of the government service had asked a raise of salary because his remuneration was out of proportion to the digrity and responsibility of his position. Then another man in another branch thought he should have more for the same reason, and by and be the employes in those departments got in the game and concluded that the dignity of their positions demanded that they should get a raise. Finally, almost every head of a department has now asked or received an increase, and now the rank and file are about to get it. The House bill fixing salaries for the next two years, it is said, proposes a raise of almost all the salaries, not already recently increased.

The sentiment of the group was almost unanimously against the proposition for further salary-raising, and several senators intimated that they were sharponing their knives to lop off some of the propositions. Several agreed that the attorney-general and his clerk and assistant deserved and should receive more, but many of the others, it was stated, were getting all they should receive. One member ventured the assertion that not

ESCAPE GARNISHMENT.

Bill to Exempt State Officers . From This Legal Step.

Mr Phlegar has offered in the Senate a bill, the effect of which would be to bill, the effect of which would be to secure to State officials, clerks and employes immunity from garnishment. The measure, is an emergency bill, designed to repeal an act passed at the last session, the effect of which was to make officials and employes of the State Hable to garnishment for debt. The measure is stated to be an emergency bill, and in its preamble it is stated that in order to provide for the proper conduct of the State government it is necessary to pass the bill. It is said that one or more members of the General Assembly was threatened with garnishment for debt.

favor. He thought members of the Gen-eral Assembly, and State officers and employes should be liable for their debts just as other people are. The effect of such a law, he believes, will be to cause merchants to refuse credit to such officers and employes.

The bill was not acted on yesterday.

JORDAN BILL AGAIN.

The Old Fight in the Senate to Come Up Again.

Come Up Again.

The measure, popularly known as the Jordan oyster bill, or the bill to break the Baylor geodetic survey and lease under certain specified restrictions, certain barren or depleted and exhausted oyster grounds, rocks and shoals within such survey, will come up for hearing before the Senate Committee for Fish before the Senate Committee for Fish and Game to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The bill of which Mr. Jordan, of Frederick, is the original framer, assisted by Mr. Cardwell, of Hanover, and others, occupied much time last session, but failed owing to certain constitutional objections and crudities in the draft of the measure. This session the bill has been very carefully drawn and the interests of the cyster tengers carefully safeguarded, it is claimed, and the measure will command more support in the Bennte than the bill of last session. It will require twenty-one votes to pass it. The bill last session was adversely reported by the Sennte Committee, but it is more likely to be favorably reported this session. It is not expected that it will be necessary to give hearings on the measure, it having been exhaustively discussed already.

Still Another Dispensary.

Still Another Dispensary.

A bill was introduced yesterday by Mr. Campbell to allow the voters of the city of Buena Visia to vote upon the question of establishing a dispensary for the sale of intoxicating figures. If this bill is passed and the dispensary proposition carries Buena Visia will have the distinction of being the first city in the State to resort to the dispensary at radgway, Henry county, has just been offered and Senator Rison will soon offer one to establish a dispensary at Chatham, Pittsylvania county.

Another Dispensary Bill Still Another Dispensary.

Another Dispensary Bill. Another Dispensary Bill.

Another dispensary bill was offered yesterday, this one by Mr. Garrett, of Henry. That county has tried the dispensary plan at Martinaville and is so pleased with it that it proposes to establish another at Ridgway. The bill offered in the Senate yesterday by Mr. Garrett provides therefor. Prominent citizens of Martinaville thus express their views of the dispensary system:

"The bar-room has been eliminated, the ovil resulting therefrom is greatly diminished. Liquor is dispensed under the immediate supervision of sworn public officers, authorized under the laws of the Commonwealth, and the offects of its indulgence minimized."

FAIRMOUNT SAYS IT HAS NO SMALLPOX

The statement by Superintendent John K. Fussell that a smallpox scare in Fairmount had caused the school board to order a vaccination of the pupils in the schools there seems to have caused more of, a stir than the alleged scare liself. Mr. Fussell said there was no smallpox in the school, but that there was understood to be some in the neighborhood. The residents of the little town declare his to be a mistake. There is, they say, no smallpox in Fairmount or at any place immediately near it.

Half-Clad Men and Women Rush Out Into the Bitter Winter Cold.

(By Associated Press.) CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 22.-Fire to-day partially destroyed the building occupied by the Alhambra Theatre Hotel and apartments. The structure was three stories high and fronted on Archer Averue and State and Nineteenth Streets. After the fire was extinguished the remains of three persons, two men and a weman, who had been suffocated, were found in the ruins. There were many weman, who had been suffocated, were found in the ruins. There were many narrow escapes.

The Albambra Theatre, around which the hotel is built, was partly destroyed.

The fire is believed to have started from an overheatel boiler in the basement of the Albambra restaurant. The smoke soon filled the halls of the upper stories, and but for the night clerk, Phillip Vingo, the firemen asserted, there probably would have been much greater loss of life. He ran through the halls awakening the two hundred guests. A moment later the halls were filled with half clad men and women, who groped their way down the stairs to the snow-covered streets and sought refuge in neighboring stores.

The Albambra Theatre is owned by Stair and Haviland, owners of the Bijou. Columbus and other theatres in Chicago. Fully fifty of the guests, most of them women, were carried down ladders by fitnemen. The three bodies were found in a room on the top floor of the building. From the position of the remains, the two men had apparently attempted to assist the women to escape, but had been overcome by the smoke. All the clething was burned from the bodies and the flesh scared and scorched. The remains of the men were identified as William Fisher and Frank Beckman, both of whom had recently arrived here from Clincinnati. The body of the woman was identified as that of Mrs. Annie Weils.
